Fallen Oaks

Houston, TX · single-story brick ranch · 2026 · about 4 months

Dark wood paneling and patterned vinyl came out. One warm floor now runs through every room, the kitchen went white shaker with white-veined counters, the bath got large-format marble-look porcelain, and the front of the house now points to a modern black door.

The cherry cabinets were painted white instead of replaced. Dark wood-look floors went down below, new carpet up, warm greige walls throughout, and matte-black faucets with black-framed mirrors tie the baths to the kitchen.

● HOW EACH HOUSE GETS DECIDED

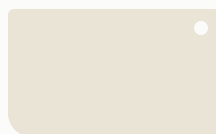

ITEM	HOW I HANDLE IT	WHAT THE BUILDER GETS
Finish package	Paint, flooring, tile, counters, cabinet hardware, plumbing, lighting, doors, trim and mirrors chosen as one package, not item by item.	One cohesive look per house that can repeat across a plan.
Budget	Every option compared on cost, availability, lead time, quality and style fit before anything is ordered.	Selections that hold the line on cost and schedule.
The buyer	Each house judged through a buyer's eyes: upgrades that raise perceived value, never over-improving for the neighborhood.	Spend goes where buyers pay for it.
In the field	Design intent explained to the trades, field questions answered, selections kept in step with the construction timeline.	Fewer delays, less rework.
Documentation	Estimates, receipts, quantities and selections tracked from first appointment to final approval.	A clean hand-off to purchasing.
Buyer appointments	Fifteen-plus years of client service, sales and design, with showroom and in-home design consultations since 2019.	Ready for the design center on day one.

Hi, I'm Jenny.

I studied interior design at Texas State and finished my certificate at the American Institute of Interior Design. I've spent fifteen years helping people choose: fabrics, finishes, layouts, colors, and the budget that goes with them.

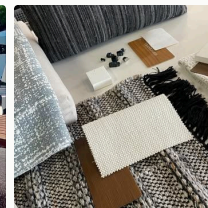

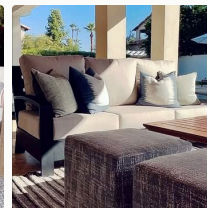

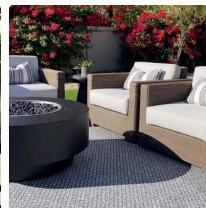

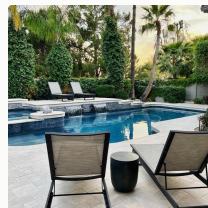

At Sellers First I pick every finish in the houses we renovate, and I order, track and walk them with the trades until the house is done. I want to bring that to a builder's buyers.

"It's important to me that my designs are as unique as my clients are."
